Dimensions: 8.0in. x 5.0in. x 0.5in.Raven: The Reluctant She-devil is a devilishly-naughty black romantic comedy with a difference As she-devils go, Raven isn't really that scary; not during the day. But when night falls something changes; something a bit unnerving. For those around her at least. By day she lives the kind of life that wouldn't raise a pensioners eyebrows. A PA for one of the directors of a major insurance company, she epitomizes normality. Mega-efficient, super-smart and ice-cool, she doesn't have many friends amongst her female work-colleagues they're all too jealous of her. She gets plenty of attention from her male colleagues though. Raven is stunningly beautiful. Tall and slim she nevertheless possesses all the curvy bits men find attractive, and her flawless white skin contrasts perfectly with long silky black hair that has just enough natural wave to shimmer in the light and look like she's dyed in deep-blue highlights. Drives them to near-insanity, and walks a very thin tightrope between safety and danger. She doesn't have a boyfriend; she can't go that far. She'd eat him for breakfast. So she can't take that risk. She likes her job and the buzz it gives her but a work-colleague suddenly going missing after a night out with her wouldn't look good on the CV. Raven has a second job. She doesn't particularly want it, but it seems she has no choice. Like eating and sleeping, it's just something she and her two best friends have to do. In some ways her night-time job is similar to her day-time one -...
