I do not know where he may spend these hours in your respective towns, but I know where he has spent those hours at large in some communities. In a great many communities he gets all dressed up and there s no place to go. I remember trying to persuade a prominent man to assist in the support of a Boy Scout organization in his little town of three hundred people. The man could not appreciate any need for anything to be done for the young people of the community, since he had raised two sons in that town and neither son was in the penitentiary. The man was reminded that not everyone is in the penitentiary who belongs there, but furthermore that the bars of a penal institution do not form the boundary line between immorality and morality, unhappiness and happiness. In this same community the postoffice and the little grocery and a vacant lot were the rendezvous of the boys and girls. Another father judged it best to keep his sixteen-year-old boy fenced in at home on the farm every evening until the son was twenty-one, to prevent him from associating with neighbors boys, lest the boy be led to go to the wicked city with these friends for his pastimes. This father was told that he would be just as criminal if he shut the boy up in a closet without food for days as to deny this red-blooded...
